RATHER STARTLING STORY

Concerning the American Baseball League Comes from Chicago.

A story was sent out from Chicago yesterday concerning a meeting held in the office of President Johnson of a majority of the American League magnates, at which some startling things were considered. Present at the meeting were President Johnson, James H. Manning, of Kansas City, Matt Killiea, of Milwaukee, and Charles Comiskey, of St. Paul. The dispatch said the proxies of James Franklin, of Buffalo, Hary Vanuerbeck, of Detroit, and W. H. Watkins, of Indianapolis, were held by President Johnson. The dispatch from Chicago states that the object of the meeting was to break away from the National League and to make war on the parent organization by carrying the war into the heart of the National League territory.

As a consequence, unless the National League magnates can find means to placate the belligerent Western organization, Chicago and St. Louis in the West and Boston and Philadelphia in the East will be included next spring, says the recase was investigated. Moore is under port. The story was published in the Chicago Times-Herald and the fact that only the one Chicago paper printed it is indicative of the fact that there is a great deal of guess work about it. The report says the new American League circuit would be composed of Chicago, St. Louis, Milwau-Although it has not been definitely an- kee and Detroit in the West, and Boston, The system of pensioning old employes | nounced, it is the understanding that the | Philadelphia, Buffalo and New York or Baltimore in the East. WON'T AFFECT INDIANAPOLIS. This story has caused a little anxiety in Indianapolis, but the enthusiasts of this city can rest easy, as Indianapolis will be in the American League, no matter what The funeral of Thomas Francis Ryan, happens. President Watkins was seen last

"That is all news to me. I know nothing of the meeting in Chicago. The statement that President Johnson held my proxy is absolutely untrue. If there had been a meeting, as reported, for such important business I would surely have been there.' President Watkins was asked if such a deal were possible as outlined in the Chicago story, but he said he could not discuss the matter, as he knew nothing about it. He said, nowever, that he did not favor a fight on the National League. There seems to be something unreal about the Chicago story. The report that Hanlon had offered his franchise to the American League is just a trifle incomprehensible. He could not give up his franthise without the consent of the National League, for there are others interested in that matter besides Mr. Hanlon. Taking the dispatch as based upon facts and the story as true it is not the style of President Johnson to give an exclusive story of such vast importance to one Chicago paper. He has too big an interest in the baseball business to antagonize the other Chicago papers by giving out such a story to one paper, excluding the others from the news. If the story should prove to be true there will be the merriest war inaugurated in the baseball world ever known. To fight the National agreement and the National League is no easy task. The old Western League clubs and franchises are owned by men with limited capital, while in the National League corporations of great wealth are backing most of the clubs. To wage a war against these corporations would mean the financial suicide of the men who began it. No conservative mind can imagine how sound business men in the baseball world. especially in the American League, could nter into the scheme, as contemplated, in the Chicago story. '10 be blacklisted by the national agreement is a thing not relished Saturday. Mr. Irwin was quite well known by any magnate, manager or ball player, for he would forever be forbidden from playing in any league doing business under that agreement-the National, American and Eastern leagues.

SOME POSSIBILITIES. Then, again, if such a league should be organized as outlined in the story from Chicago, the American League would still be in business and would be composed of a very strong circuit. For instance, Indianapolis, Louisville, Cleveland, Toledo, Detroit, Minneapolis, St. Paul and Kansas City are eight cities which would form a good league. Vanderbeck cannot boast of too many friends in Detroit and should he ranged all the way from 49 above, in 1890, engage in the fight, as rumored, there could be a stock company organized in that city to place another club there that would run him out of business, no matter what league he would represent. Buffalo ould also be included and Franklin could go into the fight. Strobel, of Toledo, is anxious to get back into a league more pretentious than the Interstate organizaion, and that city could replace Milwaukee, But, as has been stated, this is only problematical and those who have followed the situation believe that the American League in 1900 will be composed of Indian-

PREPARING FOR THE FRAY

MEETING OF STATE PROHIBITION CENTRAL COMMITTEE.

Plans of Approaching Campaign Outlined-Date for State Convention Fixed.

There was an enthusiastic meeting of the state Prohibition central committee at the Y. M. C. A., yesterday, called for the purpose of outlining the plans of the coming campaign. The meeting was presided over by State Chairman H. J. Hall, of Franklin, and those present from the various congressional districts were: W. N. Nanney, Evansville, First district; Henry Thompson, Greensburg, Fourth district; R. M. Julian, Wilkinson, Sixth district: J. B. Hann, Indianapolis, Seventh district; L. C. Masters, Muncie, Eighth district; J. M. McDaniel, Crawfordsville, Ninth district; trict; Bennet Shugart, Jonesboro, Eleventh district; M. T. Bishop, St. Joe Station, Twelfth district. There were also several county chairmen present.

Reports were heard from the various representatives concerning the work of the county evangelists and all showed that the work was progressing nicely, the reports being very flattering. It was decided to hold the state convention in Indianapolis April 24 and 25, at which a full state ticket will be nominated. F. T. McWhirter, state treasurer, tendered his resignation, owing to personal business, and Mr. William V King, of Franklin, was elected to succee nim. The convention tendered a vote thanks to Mr. McWhirter for his work in aiding the prohibition cause in this State. It was decided to have Quincy Lee Morrow, of Baltimore, continue his work as a state evangelist, and he will hold county rallies throughout the State until after the election next fall. The plans for the coming campaign were discussed at some length and it was decided to distribute thousands of leaflets throughout the State, setting out the plans of the Prohibition party. The State will be canvassed thoroughly for subscriptions to the state party organ.

PORTRAIT UNVEILED

INTERESTING CELEBRATION HELD BY THE INDEPENDENT TURNERS.

Picture of Adolph Seidensticker, Who Assisted in Organizing the Society, Exhibited. Yesterday, Jan. 1, 1900, was one of unusual interest to the Independent Turners. It brought a celebration of its majority, twenty-one years, and in connection ar elaborate banquet and the unveiling of portrait of Adolph Seidensticker, one of the founders of the organization, painted for the society by August Metzner, of this city. Adolph Seidensticker, aside from being one of the founders of the Independent Turners, was one of the most preminent members of German societies of Indianapois, being for three or four years president of the organization and also president of the Maennerchor. He was also president of the German-English school, and one of the organizers of the Thirty-second Indiana Regiment during the civil war. He was at one time owner of the German Telegraph, and quite prominent in large business proj-

Tables were spread for 350, but only about 250 of the members were in attendance. You Will Feel Like Dancing a Razzledazzle Laurence Schmidt acted as toastmaster.

The first toast was by Joseph Keller, president of the society. His subject was "Adolph Seidensticker," and during his remarks, which reviewed the life history of his subject, the portrait was unveiled. Mr. Keller was followed by George Seidenstick-er, a son of Adolph Seidensticker, who spoke on the "Independent Turners." The success of the organization has been n a great measure due to the enthusiasm of the ladies, and Mr. Monniger, in his toast, "Our Ladies," interestingly and appropriately told of the society's apprecia tion of their efforts. Just before the close of the programme President Keller introduced to the society Oscar E. Luther, of St. Louis, the new instructor for its school. after which the society as a body joined in the singing of the "Star-spangled Banner."

FIREMEN WERE BUSY.

Flames Broke Out in Numerous Places Yesterday.

The new year opened with several fires two of which were rather destructive. Shortly after midday a still alarm was turned in for a fire at Sellers farm, south of the city. An old residence owned by the city caught fire from a defective flue, and because of lack of water was destroyed, resulting in a loss of about $1,000. The department sent one chemical, but it was of little use.

A few minutes later Box 18 was pulled for a fire in the home of Samuel Taylor, 1223 Massachusetts avenue. A defective flue was also the cause there and the loss was about $400. At 2:30 fire from an unknown cause in the home of Paul D. Durizwinger caused a loss of $25. Late in the afternoon an alarm was turned in from the woman's prison. The department arrived to find a quantity of excelsior burning. The cause was unknown. There was no loss. At 5:42 p. m. a call from Box 93 sum moned the department to the rear of 408 South Pennsylvania street, where a shed which had caught fire in an unknown manner was burning. The loss was about $25.

The Lawton Home. Washington Post. The Lawton home, in southern California, which the many Luends and admirers of the brave general who lost his life in the Philippines propose to clear of all inrance, was purchased in the spring in 1884 by General (then Colonel) Lawton and given to his wife. It is located at Cypress and Sunnyside avenues and is planted for the most part in orange trees. Only part of the purchase price was paid at the time, and General and Mrs. Lawton gave to Alfred Bradley, the former owner, a mortgage for $8,500, which has not been In order to remodel and enlarge the residence Mrs. Lawton deeded away, for a loan of $2,000, an undivided one-third interest in the property, but this was re-paid in 1805. In 1895 the taxes for the ortgage interest were overlooked and the operty was sold for taxes. When the taxes were paid last April this fact was discovered and the property was redeemed. The ranch contains twelve and onetenth acres and slopes to the west, giving commanding view of the mountains surding the valley on all sides. It is an deal place for a home, and there General and Mrs. Lawton had fully made up their inds to pass the last years of their lives. The modest dwelling that they found on the ranch when they purchased it has been enlarged to a beautiful residence of welve rooms, which are filled with curios ouvenirs gathered from all parts of the United States. The house stands on a igh knoll, which overlooks the surroundng orange groves and the San Bernardine valley, as it stretches away to the westward to the Pacific. The orange trees are low eleven years old and are in excellent oition.
